Broadmoor Country Club
Welcome to the 8th annual Bob Kravitz Golf Outing at Broadmoor County Club. Thank you for joining us as we raise money to provide programs, services and fund research for Hoosiers living with ALS in Indiana. Since 2014, we have raised more than $425,000. Our goal today is to raise $30,000.

These generous donations have funded:
- $25,000 in ALS global research
- 15,800 hours of social work
- Powered 104 power wheelchairs from the Loan Closet.
- Provided 3,600 hours of respite care
- Supplied 10,200 bottles of nutritional supplements
- Opened Indiana's 3rd ALS Multidisciplinary Clinic at Parkview Neuroscience (Fort Wayne).

This cause, and those affected by ALS, are very close to my heart. I thank you for the commitment that you've made to help those living with ALS and their families.

Have a wonderful time, remember why we’re here, and be safe.

Meet Timothy Davis, PGA Professional at Broadmoor
Director of Membership Sales & Outside Events

Tim Davis, Life Time Member of the PGA, joined Broadmoor Country in 2018 as the Director of Membership Sales & Outside Events. This position comes with responsibility of developing further visibility for the facility by way new business and membership recruitment.

Davis’s role confirms Broadmoor Country Club's commitment to strengthening the facility as it continues to implement new programs offering competitive pricing for golf membership as well as non-for-profit & corporate outside events. With a career of more than 30 years managing and directing both public and private golf operations throughout the Indianapolis area, Davis works along side a team of experienced golf management experts on staff at BCC.

Davis would hope he brings to Broadmoor CC proven experience in growing the game and the facility by way of his relationships and knowledge of the golf business in Indiana. It is humbling to be instrumental in the growth and development of BCC where the club is well under way in making several improvements and updates to the existing clubhouse area and grounds.

Davis adds: "This is a really exciting time to be a part of the Broadmoor Management Team as the Board of Directors have made a commitment to further establish Broadmoor CC as not only a premier Donald Ross designed private golf facility, but a place where members and guests can enjoy today's amenities hosting golf, wedding and charitable events. I look forward to being a part of this growth while bringing my passion for the private club industry to Broadmoor Country Club."

Where a Storied Past….Meets a Memorable Future…..
Broadmoor is set on 200 rolling acres, and is designed with features Donald Ross is known for; dotted with smooth greens, challenging grass bunkers and strategic sand hazards.

Broadmoor was the host of the Champion’s Tour from 1988 through 1993, and welcomed some of the sport’s legends, including Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Raymond Floyd and Lee Trevino. Unlike many Ross-designed courses, Broadmoor’s unique architecture has been expertly preserved to maintain its artistic integrity while providing a fun and challenging backdrop for the most selective golfer.

THANK YOU FOR SUPPORTING HOOSIERS BATTLING ALS.
Long after most people would have succumbed to the ravages of ALS (Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, or Lou Gehrig's Disease), my mother wanted to live. She couldn't move her limbs. She could barely speak above a stilted whisper. She needed a breathing tube and, in the end, a feeding tube. But, dammit, she wanted to live, wanted to wring every last drop of this precious gift of life. That meant going to the theater. That meant going on ALS support-group sites and typing out messages, using her eyes to painstakingly tap out each letter. That meant going to the movies. And traveling. Long after most of us would have thrown in the towel, said enough is enough, my mom, Edith, kept fighting. "You only live once," she would tell me. It was only after a series of strokes that left her blind that she decided she could not go on. I still remember the phone call.

I was in Detroit covering the Fever and Shock in a 2007 WNBA playoff game. I was just sitting down to write a deadline column on the game when my father called, his voice breaking, telling me it was time to come to Florida to say goodbye. I went to the restroom, cried for a few moments, then wrote the toughest column I've ever had to write. After the game, I drove all the way back from Detroit, slept about two hours and caught the first flight down to St. Petersburg. By the time I arrived, hospice care had surrounded her, keeping her comfortable. A few hours later, the care-giver told us, "It's time."We hugged and kissed her, told her how much we loved and admired her, this amazing lady who came from a poor New York City family, who worked to support her family at age 16, who had her undergraduate and graduate degrees and worked several different jobs as she followed her many passions. She emitted a low moan for a few moments, haunting sounds that still echo in my mind to this day, and then she was gone.

My brother and I hugged our inconsolable father. I remember when they had a 50th wedding party. They did it a year or two before their 50th because they knew my mom was not likely to survive much longer. ALS was taking her away from us, even if her mind remained sharp as ever. She spoke to the crowd of well-wishers, haltingly, in a whisper that was barely audible. "I've been told that Jews don't believe in angels," she said. "But I do. Because I know an angel, and he's my husband." There wasn't a dry eye in the joint. What I remember, though, was her wicked sense of humor and her essential New York Jewish mom-ness.

At one point, my dad beckoned me and said my mom had something she wanted to share. I was sure this was going to be something heart-felt and tearful, a reminiscence of a life well-lived. "Robby," she said quietly, "have you ever considered Rogaine?" Lord help me. Another time, she said to me, "I should have gotten this disease earlier so you could have written 'Mondays With Edith' and become a best-selling author." She was a piece of work.

It's in her loving memory that we've organized the annual Bob Kravitz ALS Golf.

- Bob Kravitz
